

Football Eccentrics.

A Manager in Nappies

Some footballers call a manager who is not very good as 'still being in nappies'. But in the case of a club in Romania it was actually true. In January 1997 the manager of this club was so cross with his team because they were doing so badly he made his son the new manager. His son was just six months old.