

Football Eccentrics.

Brian Clough

As a player Brian Clough was known to be arrogant. His job at Middlesborough was to score goals and he didn't let anyone get in his way. Especially his own team mates. He would shout 'Out of the way,' at fellow players as they were setting up to shoot a goal, and then steal the ball from them and score himself. One time he barged a teammate, Arthur Fitzsimmons, off the ball before running on to score. When asked about it later, Clough said: 'I'm better at it than he is.' What made it more annoying was that he was right.